

Good Laboratory Documentation: An Introduction

Nov 30, 2015 8:00 am EST

The lifeblood of any quality system, or any constituent within a quality system, is documentation. The pharmaceutical industry is inundated with documentation in many forms. From policies and procedures, to data collection forms and logbooks, the integrity, perhaps even the foundation of our industry, relies heavily on the recording of vital information specific to a validated process or marketable product.

Source URL: <http://www.ivtnetwork.com/article/good-laboratory-documentation-introduction>